New Italian style Moscato joins T'Gallant Juliet range

This month T'Gallant releases a new Moscato true to the romantic Northern Italian wine styles. Also joining the Juliet range is the new vintage 2006 Pinot Noir and 2007 Pinot Grigio.

The 2007 T'Gallant Juliet Moscato is an aromatic white Moscato. The production of this wine represents a logical extension of the Juliet range capitalising on the popularity of the original T'Gallant Moscato loved by so many.

This wine was sourced from premium vineyards across south eastern Australia. The Moscato is pale straw in colour with a beautiful effervescence. The nose displays intense lifted floral and fresh aromatics leading to the fine fresh fruit flavours on the front palate. A crisp, lemon zest acidity balances this luscious wine and supports the weight of flavour throughout the fine, crisp finish.

T'Gallant winemaker Kevin McCarthy said "Our new Juliet Moscato offers people a taste sensation that is quite profound. People connect with the Muscat flavour in a way which is hard to describe. The Juliet Moscato offers a taste that is different to any other wine I know. It is perfect with food and it is so versatile – it is low in alcohol and the frizzante adds that extra dimension for perfect celebrating and entertaining!"
